

Pasts, Inc. Center for Historical Studies and the Summer Course

“Cities and Science: Urban History and the History of Science in the Study of Early Modern and Modern Europe” cordially invite you to the launch of the most recent thematic issue of the journal

East Central Europe

entitled

“Historic Jewish Spaces in Central and Eastern European Cities”

edited by

Erika Szívós (ELTE BTK, Budapest) and Michael L. Miller (CEU, Budapest)

Today, historic Jewish districts in several European cities are experiencing a revival. The thematic issue is intended to be a contribution to a relatively new research field that focuses on the real role of these urban areas. Its articles represent an array of possible historical approaches and a broad spectrum of geographical locations ranging from Central European cities to Istanbul (or Constantinople, once the capital of the Ottoman Empire). This issue has grown out of a conference session organized in Prague as part of the Eleventh International Conference on Urban History. That context in itself predetermined a multidisciplinary approach; as is often the case with urban history conferences and collective volumes, the contributors of the present thematic issue come from a variety of backgrounds such as social history, architectural history, heritage management, and Jewish studies.

The issue will be presented by

Markian Prokopovych
(University of Birmingham)

with the participation of

Erika Szívós

July 22, Friday, 16.00

Zrínyi u. 14, Room 311

Reception to follow

CONTENTS

THEMATIC BLOCK: ARTICLES

- ERIKA SZÍVÓS, Introduction: The Revival of Historic Jewish Spaces in Central and Eastern European Cities 139
- MELTEM ÖZKAN ALTINÖZ, The Urban History of the Ottoman Empire in the Nineteenth Century: An Exemplary Study on Galata's Jewish Congregations 163
- JÁNOS MAZSU, Jewish Settlement in Prohibited Cities: Jewish Immigration into Debrecen in the Period 1790–1870 181
- BÖRRIES KUZMANY, The Rise and Limits of Participation: The Political Representation of Galicia's Urban Jewry from the Josephine Era to the 1914 Electoral Reform 216
- LISA SILVERMAN, Leopoldstadt, Judenplatz, and Beyond: Rethinking Vienna's Jewish Spaces 249
- MONIKA MURZYN-KUPISZ, From "Atlantis" to the Familiar? The Past and Present of Jewish Cracow in the Second Decade of the New Millennium 268

FURTHER ARTICLES

- PETER BARRER, From Nowhere to "Partyslava": Mediated Images of Bratislava since 1989 299
- ZSÓFIA LÓRÁND, Exhibiting Rape, Silencing Women: Elaine Polcz in the House of Terror in Budapest 321
- Book Reviews 343

EAST CENTRAL EUROPE

Historic Jewish Spaces in Central and Eastern European Cities

Guest Editors: Erika Szívós and Michael L. Miller

Volume 42 No. 2-3 2015

BRILL