

Polemo Symposium 2018 Panels and schedule

Dates: September 28th-29th 2018

Location: Central European University, Budapest, Hungary. Nador utca 15, room 203.

Day 1: September 28th

09:15-09:30	Welcoming Address
09:30-11:00	Polemizing What We Should Not – On Markets	<ul style="list-style-type: none">- The kids aren't alright? The status of children in libertarianism Zlata Božac (Central European University)- On Behavioural Techniques in Markets Vitkor Ivankovic (Central European University)
11:00-11:30	Coffee break
11:30-13:00	Disobeying Polemical Laws	<ul style="list-style-type: none">- Revolution in a legitimate state Zsolt Kapelner (Central European University)- A Republican Theory of Justified Disobedience: The Example of Plato's Crito Andreas Marcou (Queen Mary, University of London)
13:00-15:00	Lunch
15:00-16:30	The Law of Polemical Cases	<ul style="list-style-type: none">- Should We Punish a Robot? The Merit of Legal Personhood Agne Alijauskaite (Vilnius University)- Conditional Consent to Sexual Intercourse Karamvir Chadha (University of Cambridge)
16:30-17:00	Coffee break

POLEMO is a research group based at the Central European University.
For we must know that strife (πόλεμος polemos) is common to all, and strife is justice and that all things come into being through strife necessarily (Heraclitus).

17:00-18:30	Workplace Polemics and Business Ethics	<ul style="list-style-type: none">- Firms and Effective Altruism Andras Miklos; via conference call (University of Rochester)- Vulnerability as Disenfranchisement Stanislas Richard (Central European University)
19:30 - *	Dinner	Restaurant TBD
Day 2: September 29th
10:30-12:00	Internationalising What Is Polemically Local	<ul style="list-style-type: none">- Movement as an essential interest Georgiana Turculet (Central European University)- Resisting from outside. Individuals, the state and the natural duty justice Elettra Repetto (Central European University)
12:00-14:00	Lunch
14:00-15:30	Classical Polemical Political Theory	<ul style="list-style-type: none">- Authority, Accountability, and Reparations Jennifer Page (University of Zurich)- Democracy and Compulsory Voting Alexandru Volacu (SNSPA Bucharest)
15:30-16:00	Coffee break
16:00-17:30	Literally Polemical: Philosophy of War	<ul style="list-style-type: none">- Technology and the Future of Warfare. Towards an account of Meaningful Human Control over Autonomous weapon systems Marianna Capasso; via conference call (University of Pisa/Scuola Normale Superiore)- Modality and the Deontological Roots of Sovereignty and Just War: An Islamic Perspective Ahmed Abdel Meguid (Syracuse University)

POLEMO is a research group based at the Central European University.
For we must know that strife (πόλεμος polemos) is common to all, and strife is justice and that all things come into being through strife necessarily (Heraclitus).